

Summary of Organizational Needs from Local Organizations Working to Reduce Opioid Overdose

In an effort to better understand the work being done to reduce opioid-related overdoses as well as identify gaps in services in the Milwaukee community, Milwaukee COPE developed a voluntary survey for community organizations. This survey allowed us to develop an inventory of local organizations working to reduce opioid overdose in Milwaukee County as well as to identify specific organizational needs and these organizations' perspectives on the broader Milwaukee County needs to effectively combat the opioid-related overdose epidemic.

The following organizational needs are the result of a thematic analysis of 61 organizations' responses to the question: "What are 3 specific needs of your organization to assist in your work to reduce heroin and opioid overdose deaths." The needs were compiled by type of organization (see page 3 for definitions) and common themes were identified. In the table below, the common themes are listed and then it is indicated which types of organizations identified the specific need. Note: some organizations may fall under more than one category as many of the organizations do a variety of activities. Further, this list does not reflect the number of organizations that identified a specific need, just the number of organizational types.
